Welcome back, welcome new
Welcome, welcome to all of you.....

Oh, the Paws They Will Earn and the Things They Will Learn!

Respect me! Respect you! Respect all others, too!

Respect here! Respect there! Respect stuff everywhere!

If you haven’t already noticed, this year’s school-wide behavior system is inspired by the one and only Dr. Seuss. Students may earn little paws for following our rules and displaying positive character traits. The paws will be collected in two very large hats (from a certain cat) with the goal of filling the hats to earn our end of year school-wide celebration. Each week, teachers will choose one student from their classes to recognize for respectful, positive, and responsible behavior. Those students will hear their names announced at the end of the week, have their photo taken for our front hallway display, receive a S.E.U.S.S. paper with some tasks to complete at home, and get a small prize when they return the paper. Whole classes may earn big paws for their behavior in specials, the hallway, lunch, and recess. Students will hear reminders of expected behaviors during the announcements each morning. And, teachers will be reinforcing our behavior expectations with the use of a clip chart system in every classroom. Hats off to you for encouraging your children to show us their Seusstastic behavior here at school!

A special addition was made to the playgrounds at Andrew Maier. Students will now be able to use the Buddy Circle when they need help finding someone to play with at recess. The students were taught to stand or sit in the circle when they are looking for a buddy, to say “yes” if someone invites them to play, and to always be on the lookout for someone who needs a buddy. The Buddy Circle will help students practice empathy and compassion.

Art from the heart.....

Mrs. Wentzel, Andrew Maier’s Art teacher has created both a blog and a Facebook page that you are going to want to save to your favorites! Check it out, links below 😊

Mrs. Fry 4th grade class learned the importance of teamwork by working together and cooperating to stack the cups without touching them with their hands. Each child held a string connected to a rubber band.
